Over the past eight years, you've witnessed my work on the Lone Tree City Council, and it has been my honor to serve this community. We have achieved great things by prioritizing partnerships, relying on facts to guide our decisions, listening to residents, and delivering the infrastructure to support our growth. But there's still more work to be done!

My fellow city council members, including my opponent in this race, elected me as mayor pro tem for the last two years. They recognized my extensive and respected local and regional relationships, financial expertise, leadership skills, ability to achieve solutions and my responsiveness to Lone Tree residents and businesses.

Having lived in my home in the Carriage Club neighborhood of Lone Tree for 24 years, I understand the unique needs of our community. As a former small business owner, I have experienced firsthand the challenges faced by both large and small businesses here.

Transparency in financial matters, efficient city operations, love for our city and our aspiration to be a national model drive my commitment. We make informed decisions while also reaching for the stars, exploring new ways to benefit our community.

As a resident of Lone Tree, you deserve a mayor who takes the job seriously. The role of mayor isn't just about celebrating our successes; it's also about the hard work and time required to create those successes.

To quote our current Mayor Millet, "Together, we have raised the profile of the city from an outer ring Denver suburb to a vibrant, complete community. Collective action has allowed our impact to extend beyond the borders of Lone Tree." My work as a respected local and regional leader has been part of what has brought about Lone Tree's transformation from suburb to complete community, whose impact extends well beyond our borders.

When elected Mayor of Lone Tree, I look forward to serving with council members with varying degrees of experience, including two new council members and my opponent, who has served for two years of her first term. I will lead by example to continue the culture of openness and inclusivity that we have built here. This is the time to thoughtfully choose your mayor for the next four years. Please return your ballot today to elect WYNNE for MAYOR!

Thank you for your vote,

Wynne
